Code of Ethics

- We strive to provide the highest quality of service to the persons served, regardless of race, color, religion, gender, disability, age, sexual orientation, or national origin.
- We will maintain a professional relationship with persons served and make the welfare of the people served our highest priority when making decisions about treatment and services.
- We are committed to using all resources wisely and honestly.
- We seek the informed consent and active participation of the persons served and, within the bounds of best practices and limited resources, we support the right of persons served to choose services.
- We strive to preserve the privacy and confidentiality of persons served.
- We honor the rights of the persons served to file grievances and assist them in the process.
- We assure the basic human rights as well as the client rights of all persons served.
- We respect our colleagues and strive to promote a professional, collegial and safe work environment.
